

Fennel Celebrates Christmas

A story about remembering the birth of Jesus

By Matt Arozian
and Claude the AI

Christmas morning at the Great Oak Tree, where all the Valley creatures gather to celebrate together.

Christmas morning! Snow covered the Valley in soft white.

Fennel and Chirp hurried toward the Great Oak Tree.

“Everyone's gathering there!” chirped Chirp happily.

Under the Great Oak Tree, creatures were gathering. Fennel saw his friends Baxter the raccoon and Stickles the porcupine among the other creatures.

“Today we celebrate Christmas!” said Baxter warmly.

Everyone smiled.

Baxter spoke gently. “Christmas is when we remember that God sent His Son Jesus to be born.”

“God loved His people so much,” Baxter continued. “He came to save them!”

Fennel listened carefully.

“Who was born on Christmas?” asked Baxter.

“JESUS was!” all the creatures answered together.

“And who sent Jesus to us?” “GOD did!”

All the creatures sang together. They thanked God for sending Jesus.

Fennel joined in the joyful celebration. This is what Christmas is all about!

Remembering Jesus. Thanking God. Celebrating together.

Later, as Fennel and Chirp walked home through the snowy Valley, they saw a little stable scene in the village square.

“That’s Baby Jesus,” said Chirp softly.

Fennel smiled. “God’s greatest Gift.”

Merry Christmas!

The End!

Don't be afraid! I bring you good news of great joy!

*Today the Savior was born—
Christ the Lord!*

Luke 2:10-11